Brief update that is mostly covered on the website...

- For the first 22 months I paid approximately $18,000 in child support. However Judge Mary K. Wagner said it wasn't enough effort and sentenced me to six months in jail.
- My jail time forced my oldest son, who is a senior, to quit his full time school and do part-time alternative school so he could support himself and his brother. They had to pay for their own food, rent and utilities thanks to Judge Wagner's decision. Wagner refused to have their mother pay them even a penny in support.
- My ex-wife doesn't need a full-time job, and Wagner protects and defends her in court from needing to have one, even though she has a four year college teaching degree, and had taught for a few years. (Read the transcripts on the web)
- For the year of 2004, I only got to be with my five children for a total of 7½ days. Of those days my two boys got to see their siblings a total of maybe two or three days for the year.
- Judge Mary K. Wagner has refused all of my appeals to extend my placement.
- For my last attempt at changing placement and support, read my website on how Wagner fled from the courtroom as I entered. She deprived me of my hearing and threw me in jail.
- I went to jail owing about $7,000. Upon release I then owed about $15,000. It took about one more month before I acquired steady employment again, falling behind some more.

- When I was about $7,000 in arrears, Judge Mary K. Wagner slandered me by saying I was over $11,000 behind and threw me in jail based upon her own lie. (Read the March transcript on my site)
- Because of jail I defaulted on every loan I had. I couldn't make a payment for over six months on everything from my van to my phone. I'm now in collection for almost everything. Compliments and Wisdom of Judge Mary K. Wagner.
